

IFSC WORLD CUP VAIL 2016

WORLD CUP RETURNS TO AMERICA JUNE 10TH-11TH, 2016

After a three-week break, the Bouldering World Cup continues this week in Vail, USA. The longstanding IFSC event host will feature the penultimate sixth competition of the 2016 season.

Building a Legacy

Vail has become a staple on the Bouldering World Cup circuit. Since 2008, the small resort town in the Rocky Mountains has annually welcomed big-time international bouldering to the climbers' state of Colorado, and this year will be no different. Expect more exciting problems, another enthusiastic audience and much sending by a new cast of elite bouldering athletes.

Who to Watch

Megan Mascarenas of the United States triumphed in Vail last year, and she will again be joined by teammate Nathaniel Coleman who placed second. They will compete alongside American bouldering legends Alex Puccio and Daniel Woods.

Top-ranked Shauna Coxsey of Great Britain claimed Bronze at Vail in 2015, and she will almost certainly give the Americans another run for their money as she vies for her fifth Gold of 2016. Akiyo Noguchi and Miho Nonaka of Japan finished in the top four and are still forces to be reckoned with, as well as Melissa Le Neve of France who is poised to improve on her 18th place finish.

For the men, be sure to track top-ranked Tomoa Narasaki of Japan. The nineteen-year-old has been on a tear as of late, finishing first or second in the previous three competitions. Also keep an eye on teammate and runner-up Kokoro Fujii, as well as Jongwon Chon of Korea who claimed the top spot at Innsbruck. Jan Hojer has yet to win a competition this season, but the strong German placed first in Vail last year and should have another quality showing.
